

Strong Schools, Strong Communities

Williamson Strong exists on a single platform

To preserve and strengthen the Williamson County Public School System.

It is our belief that Williamson County Schools are the backbone of this community. They contribute to quality of life, positive economic development, cultural diversity, and they offer a proven pathway for our young people to lead informed, productive lives.

To assume that our school system is perfect is arrogant. To suggest that our school system should be dismantled is irresponsible. Williamson Strong believes that the solution to advancing a school system is to invest in its future, not fragment a highly successful institution that has given back to this community time and again.

Our Purpose

Williamson Strong closely follows issues related to the schools and will keep you posted on important issues related to school quality, zoning, funding, academic and other policies, and important matters relevant to our goal of excellence in public education.

Why we're here: Our mission is to make it easier for public school parents and community members to access information essential to supporting, preserving, and advancing excellence in public school education in Williamson County.

What are strong public schools? Strong schools provide a rigorous, evidence-based, inclusive, academic education for all boys and girls. Strong public schools promote access to and excellence in the arts and athletics, in addition to academics. Strong public schools are appropriately resourced and support our professional educators in the day-to-day work of providing an excellent education.

Why we aren't going away: We know that parental and community engagement is crucial to the life of our kids, our individual schools, and our school district. We want to make sure that the voices of parents and other community members who want public schools to thrive are heard throughout Williamson County and with our elected officials.
